

he might not have to give up his work and his home on the ranch so long as he lived.

Coming to the west as a young man, Mr. Hall exemplified in his life the best characteristics of both sections; the courtesy and hospitality of the south and the forthright honesty and friendliness of the west. Those who were privileged to call him friend will miss him sorely.

The entire immediate family survive him: his widow and six children, Katherine Smith, Carrie Michaelson, Mary Small, Ruth, Ralph, Jr. and James C. Hall; also one grandson, Kent Smith.

Funeral services were held from the Congregational church Tuesday afternoon, and interment was in the Wheatland cemetery with Copley Mortuary in charge of arrangements.
