

JAMESON, GEORGE L.

March 21, 1857-August 18, 1900

A heroic struggle against the inevitable, during which wonderful patience and fortitude were exhibited, George L. Jameson passed peacefully away last Saturday morning, surrounded by relatives and friends. Although suffering for years from a complication of kidney trouble and consumption, the deceased was cheerful and buoyed up with hope until the last. During all his illness, the congenial, pleasant spirit which was his inheritance was always manifest, and as the days of hopeless battling against an exorable end were slowly passed, he seemed to grow closer and dearer to the loving ones about him. Few who live in robust health are able to cast as much sunshine along life's pathway as did Roy Jameson, as he was familiarly known; and few there are whose memory will be more endearingly treasured.

Funeral services were held at the M.E. church Monday afternoon, conducted by Rev. Stevenson, and were attended by nearly the entire community. The deceased came here from Fort Collins, Colorado six years ago, and leaves a wife and infant child. Mrs. Jameson is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey Goodrich and a sister of C.W. and C.Z. Goodrich.
