

Arin showed no reaction to the verdict, though he told reporters that he's innocent of the murder.

In their closing arguments, defense attorneys said the murder was uncharacteristic of Arin who they described as a "loyal company man" with a steady work history.

But Assistant District Attorney Beth Taylor liken Arin to Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde, the fictional character who used drugs that transformed him from a kind doctor to a vicious brute.